The Midnight Coffee Run

The idea

Document the incredibly boring, liminal moments of a creative sprint. Post a photo of the blurry gas station lights at 1 AM or a terrible drive-thru coffee. No music. Just text about the grind.

Objective

Foster a sense of shared camaraderie through hyper-mundane storytelling.

Why this works

Peak "Anti-Highlight." It leans heavily into the introverted, unglamorous reality of making art. It captures a specific, lonely, but beautiful "liminal space" that makes followers feel in the trenches with you.

Hook bank

Direct / (Text) 1 AM gas station run. The mix is almost done.
Curiosity / (Text) Nothing humbles you like buying a Red Bull at 2 AM on a Tuesday...
Personality / (Text) Stared at a screen for 8 hours, now staring at these fluorescent lights.
Sarcastic / (Text) Securing the toxic chemicals required to finish this album.

How to execute

1. Plan the opener

Try this opener as a starting point: “(Text) 1 AM gas station run. The mix is almost done”. Choose the first image or moment that makes its promise clear.

2. Make the first pass

Story 1: Blurry photo of 7-Eleven neon sign from the car. Text: "Brain is completely fried. Need caffeine."
Story 2: Holding a terrible gas station coffee, walking back to the studio. Text: "Let's finish this."

3. Shape the sequence

Use this order for your first cut: Liminal Location (Photo) > Context Caption > The Return to Work. Check the frame order and keep important text and stickers clear of the interface at the top and bottom.

4. Check and publish

Use this call to action as your starting point: Poll: "Are you a night owl or an early bird when you create?" Preview the finished post and verify that any link, tag, or instruction works.

Suggested sequence

Liminal Location (Photo) > Context Caption > The Return to Work.

Call to action

Poll: "Are you a night owl or an early bird when you create?"

What to avoid

Record the ordinary moment without filming while driving. Avoid treating missed sleep as the measure of how seriously someone creates.

Make it yours

1. Creatives: The mundane walk to the mailbox to send a client package after staying up all night.
2. Producers: The silent, exhausted subway ride home at 3 AM after a grueling session.
3. Singers: Making weird throat-coat tea in a messy kitchen at midnight between vocal takes.

Before you post

Read the caption out loud. Check that the first frame and the opener make the same promise. Verify captions, credits, and any link or tag. Save a copy of the final asset and caption so you can reuse what works.
